President's Message 1971

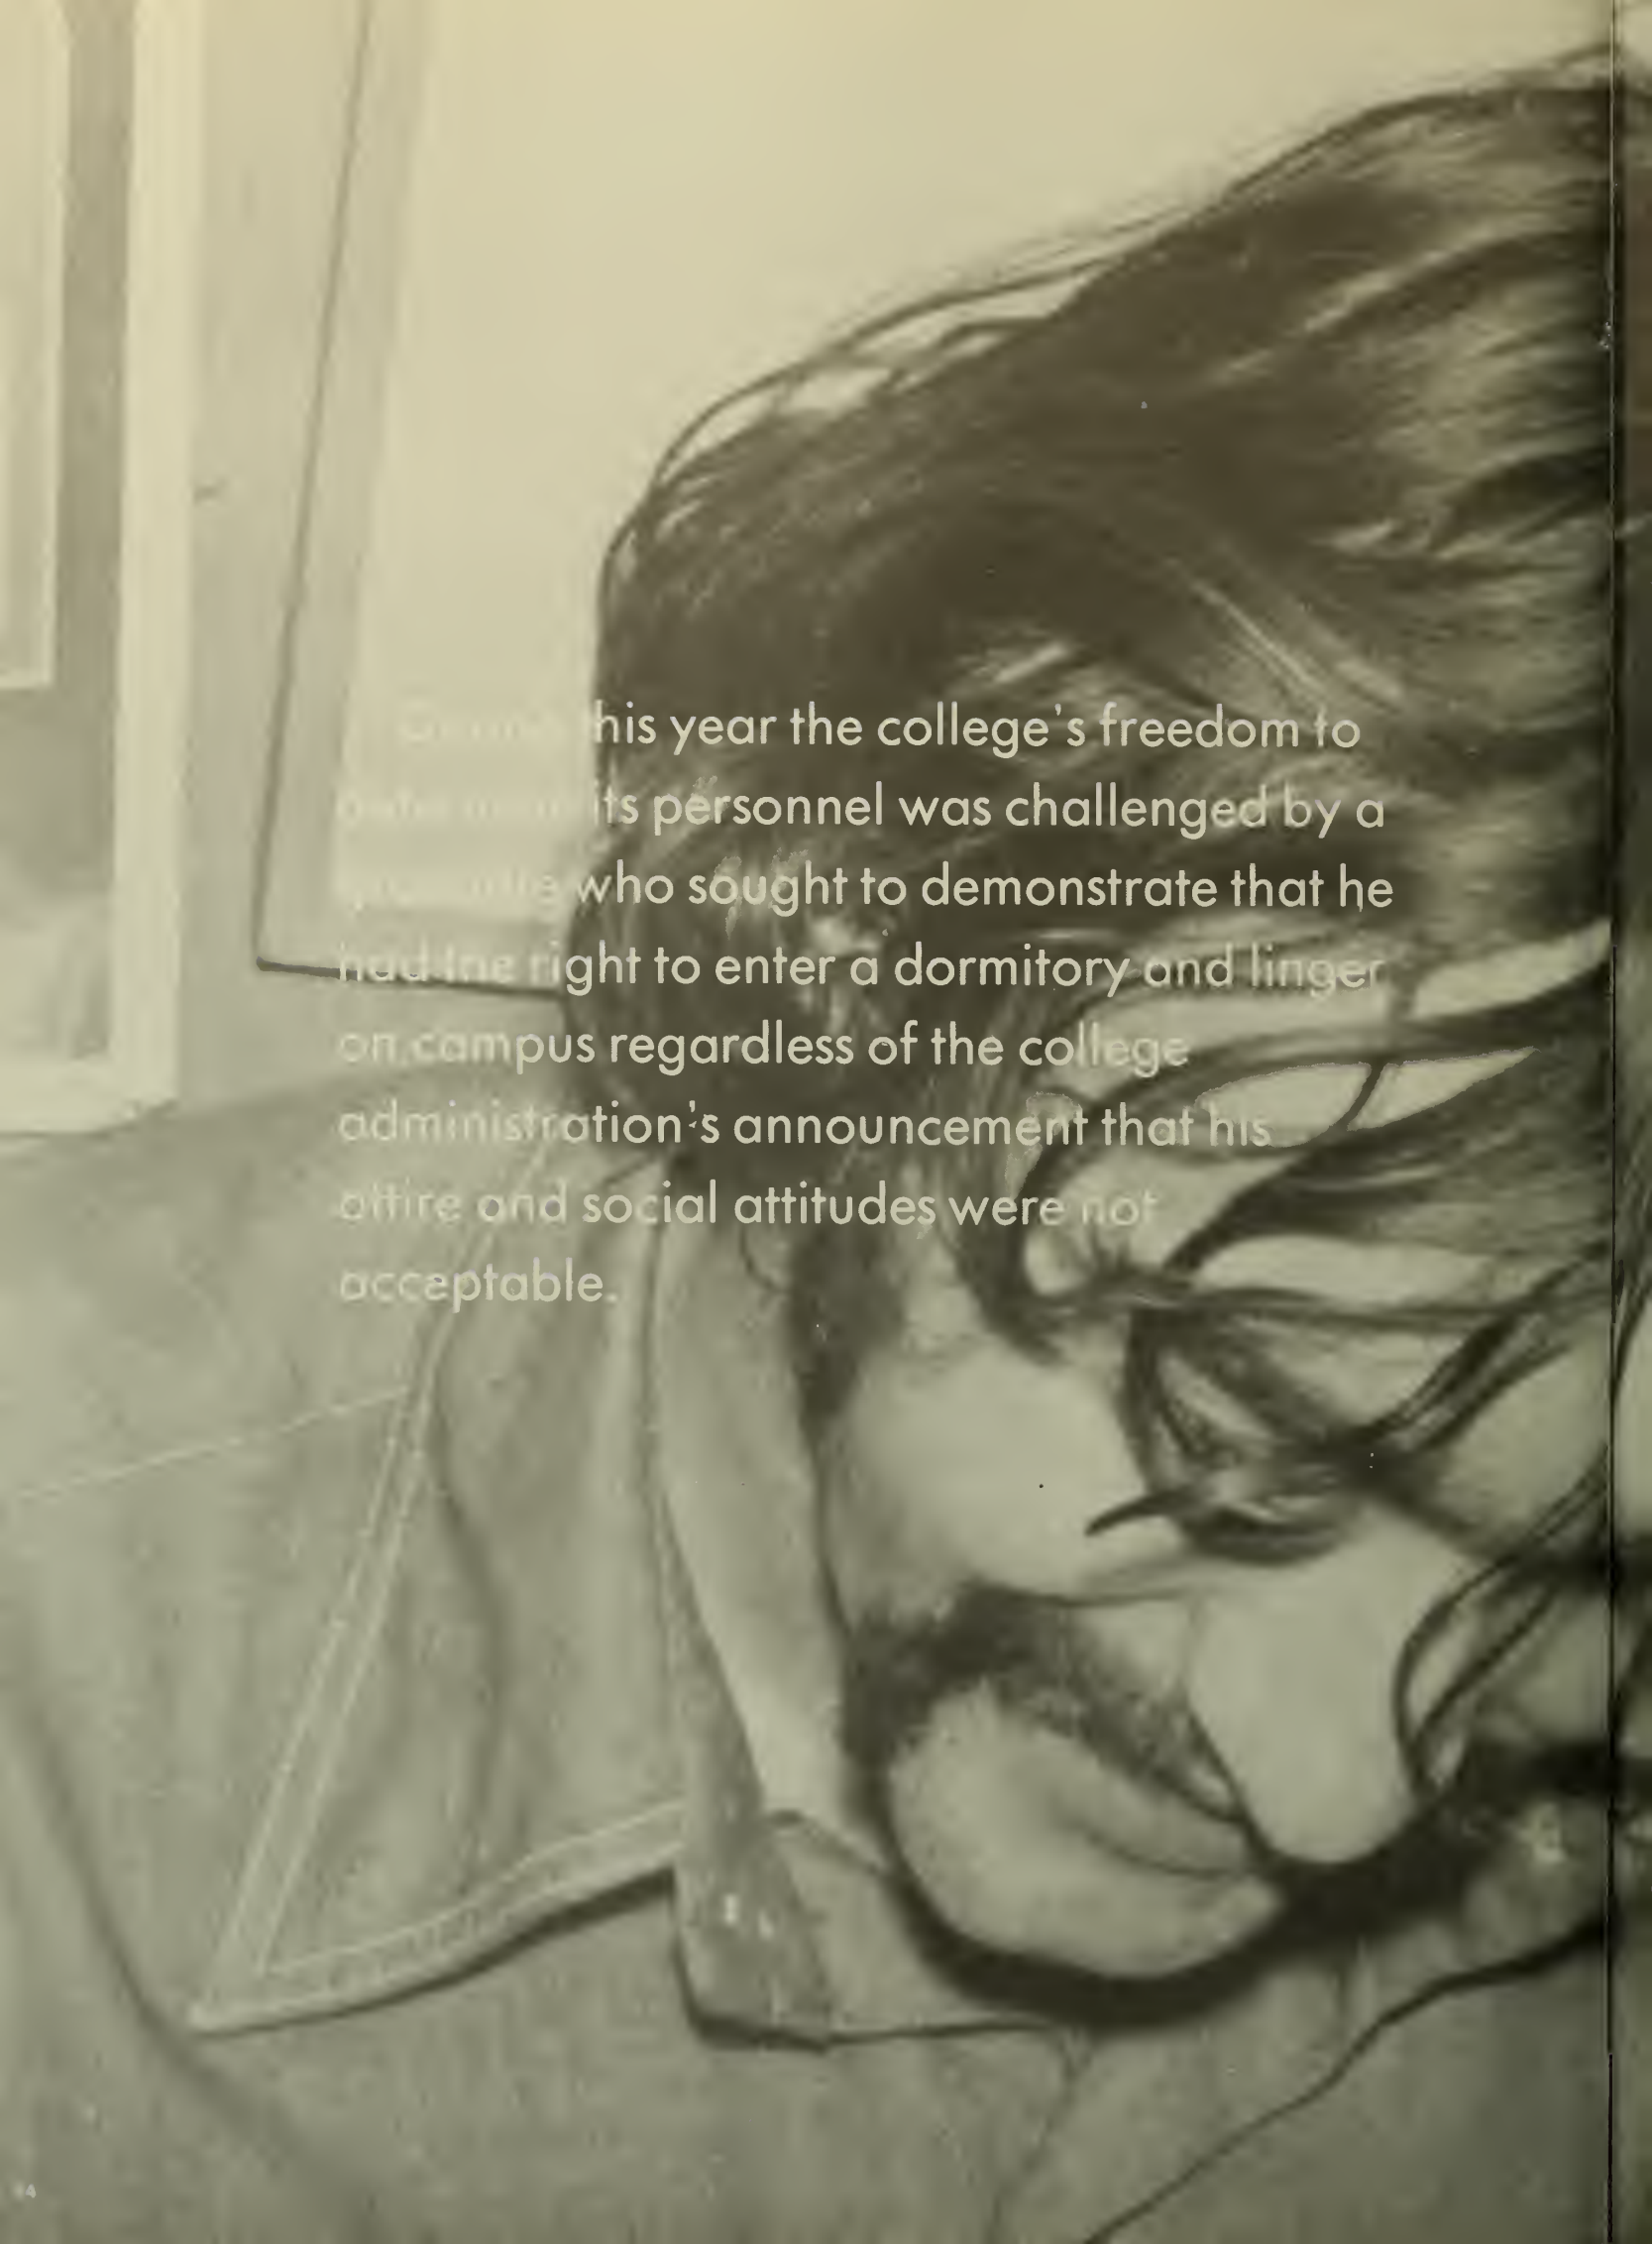

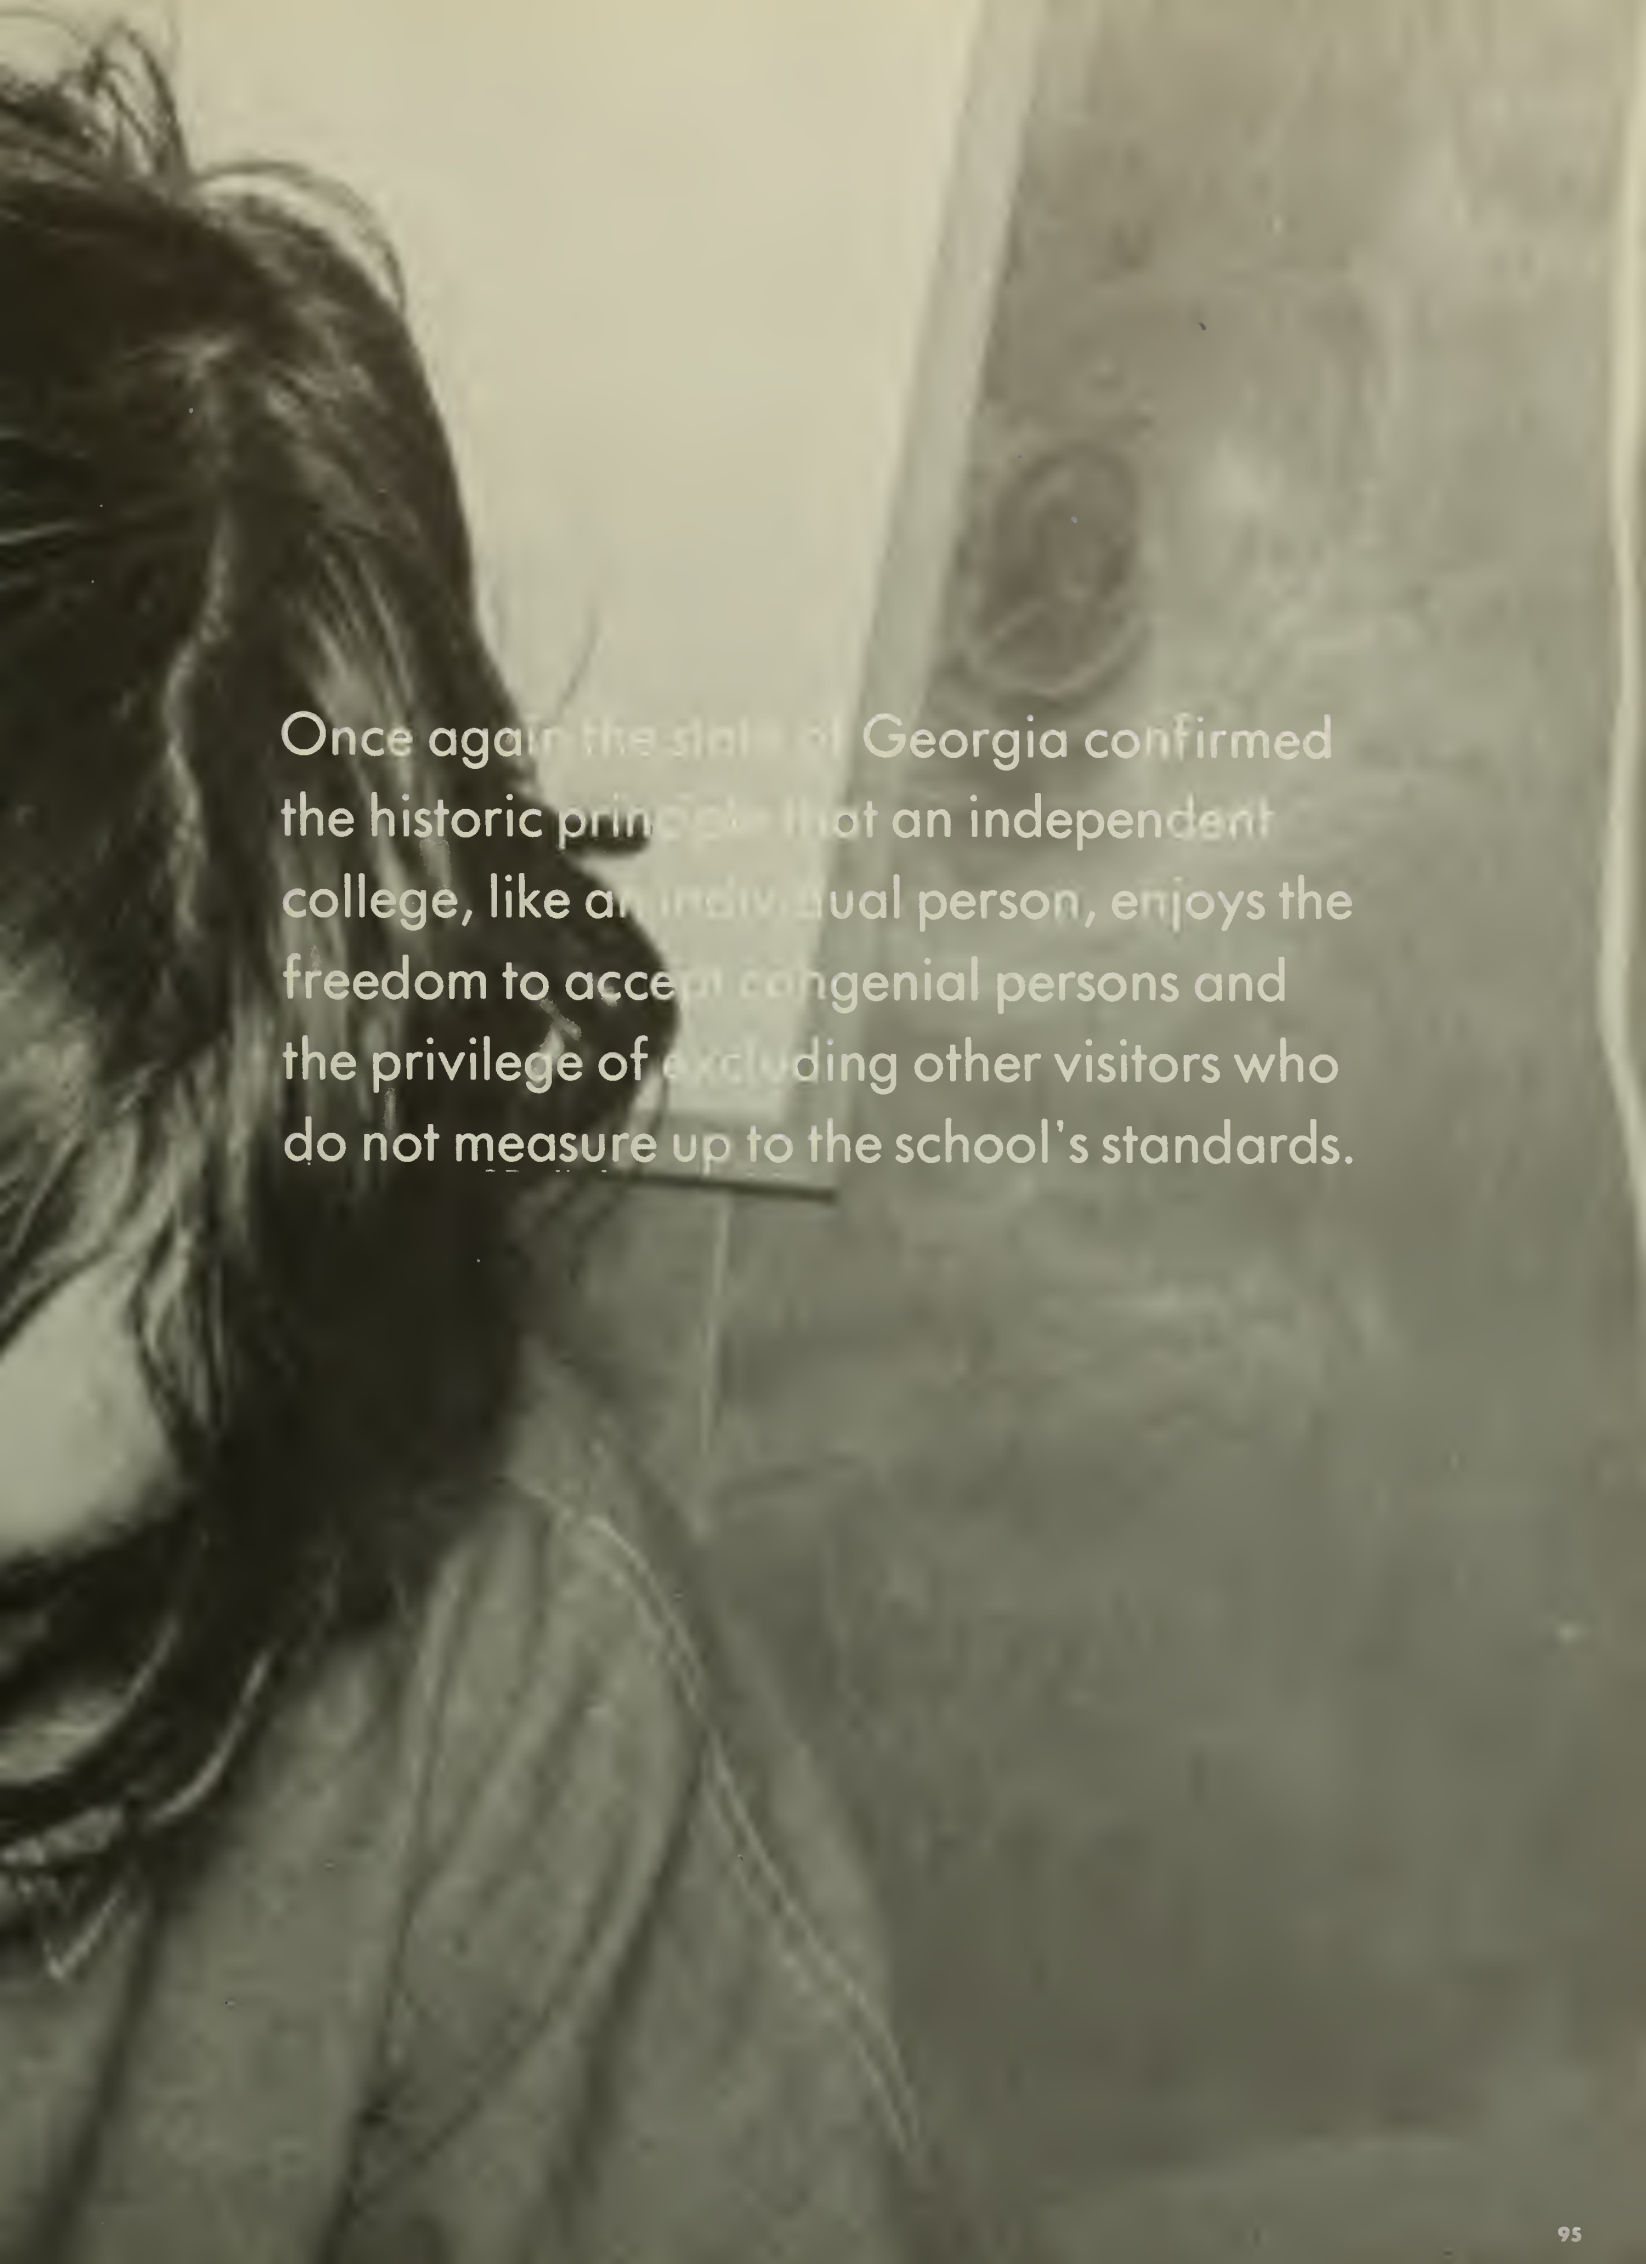

As history reviews the 70's in the life of Piedmont College, this decade may well be known as the season of testing the foundation ideas and convictions on which the college was established and developed.

Men and women of good will gathered teachers, textbooks, and eager learners in 1897 to found Piedmont College and to share knowledge, culture, and religious faith. We endeavor in 1971 to follow these major objectives.

Inviting young people to attend a private college has always been the extension of a privilege which cost the institution more than it charged for the total services rendered. We continue this American tradition of free enterprise in a gift supported college. Likewise the young people who come to our campus from Appalachia and the far corners of the globe all enjoy the freedoms of coming, or leaving, and living within the codes of freely accepted regulations.

During this year the college's freedom to order its personnel was challenged by a student who sought to demonstrate that he had the right to enter a dormitory and linger on campus regardless of the college administration's announcement that his attire and social attitudes were not acceptable.

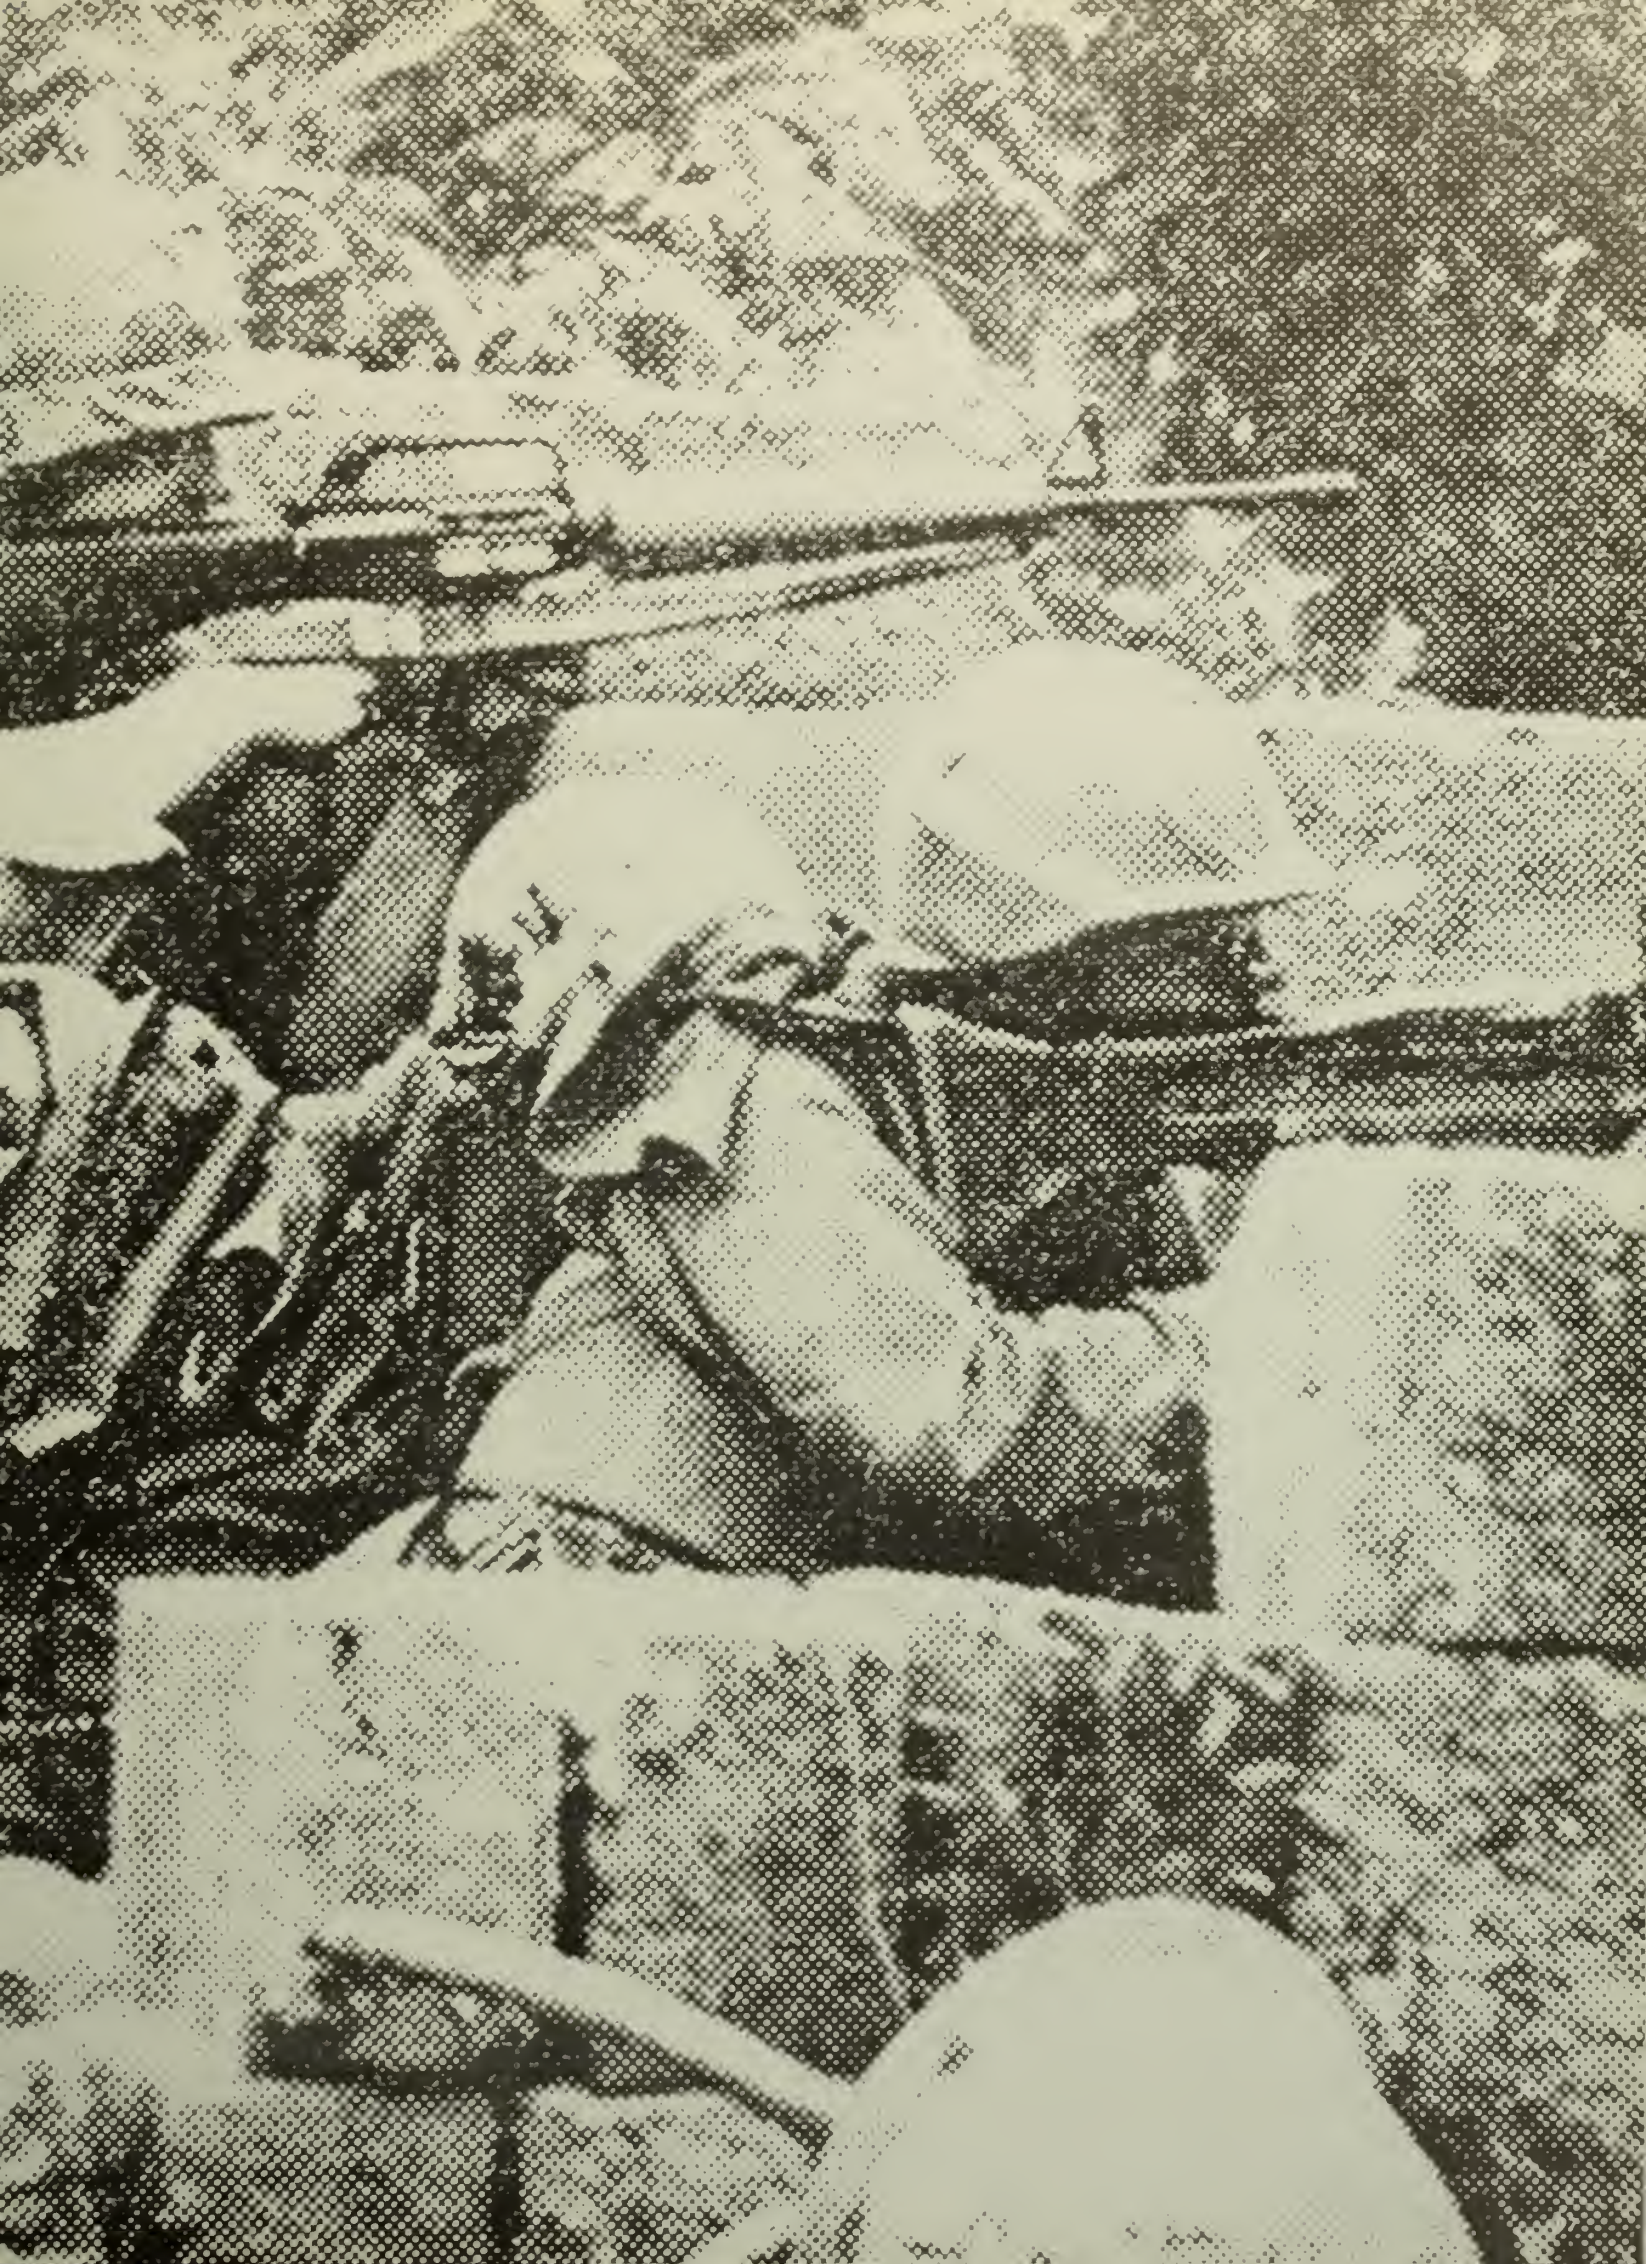

A black and white photograph showing the profile of a person with long, dark, wavy hair, looking down. The person is wearing a light-colored, textured garment. The background is a mottled, textured surface. The text is overlaid on the right side of the image.

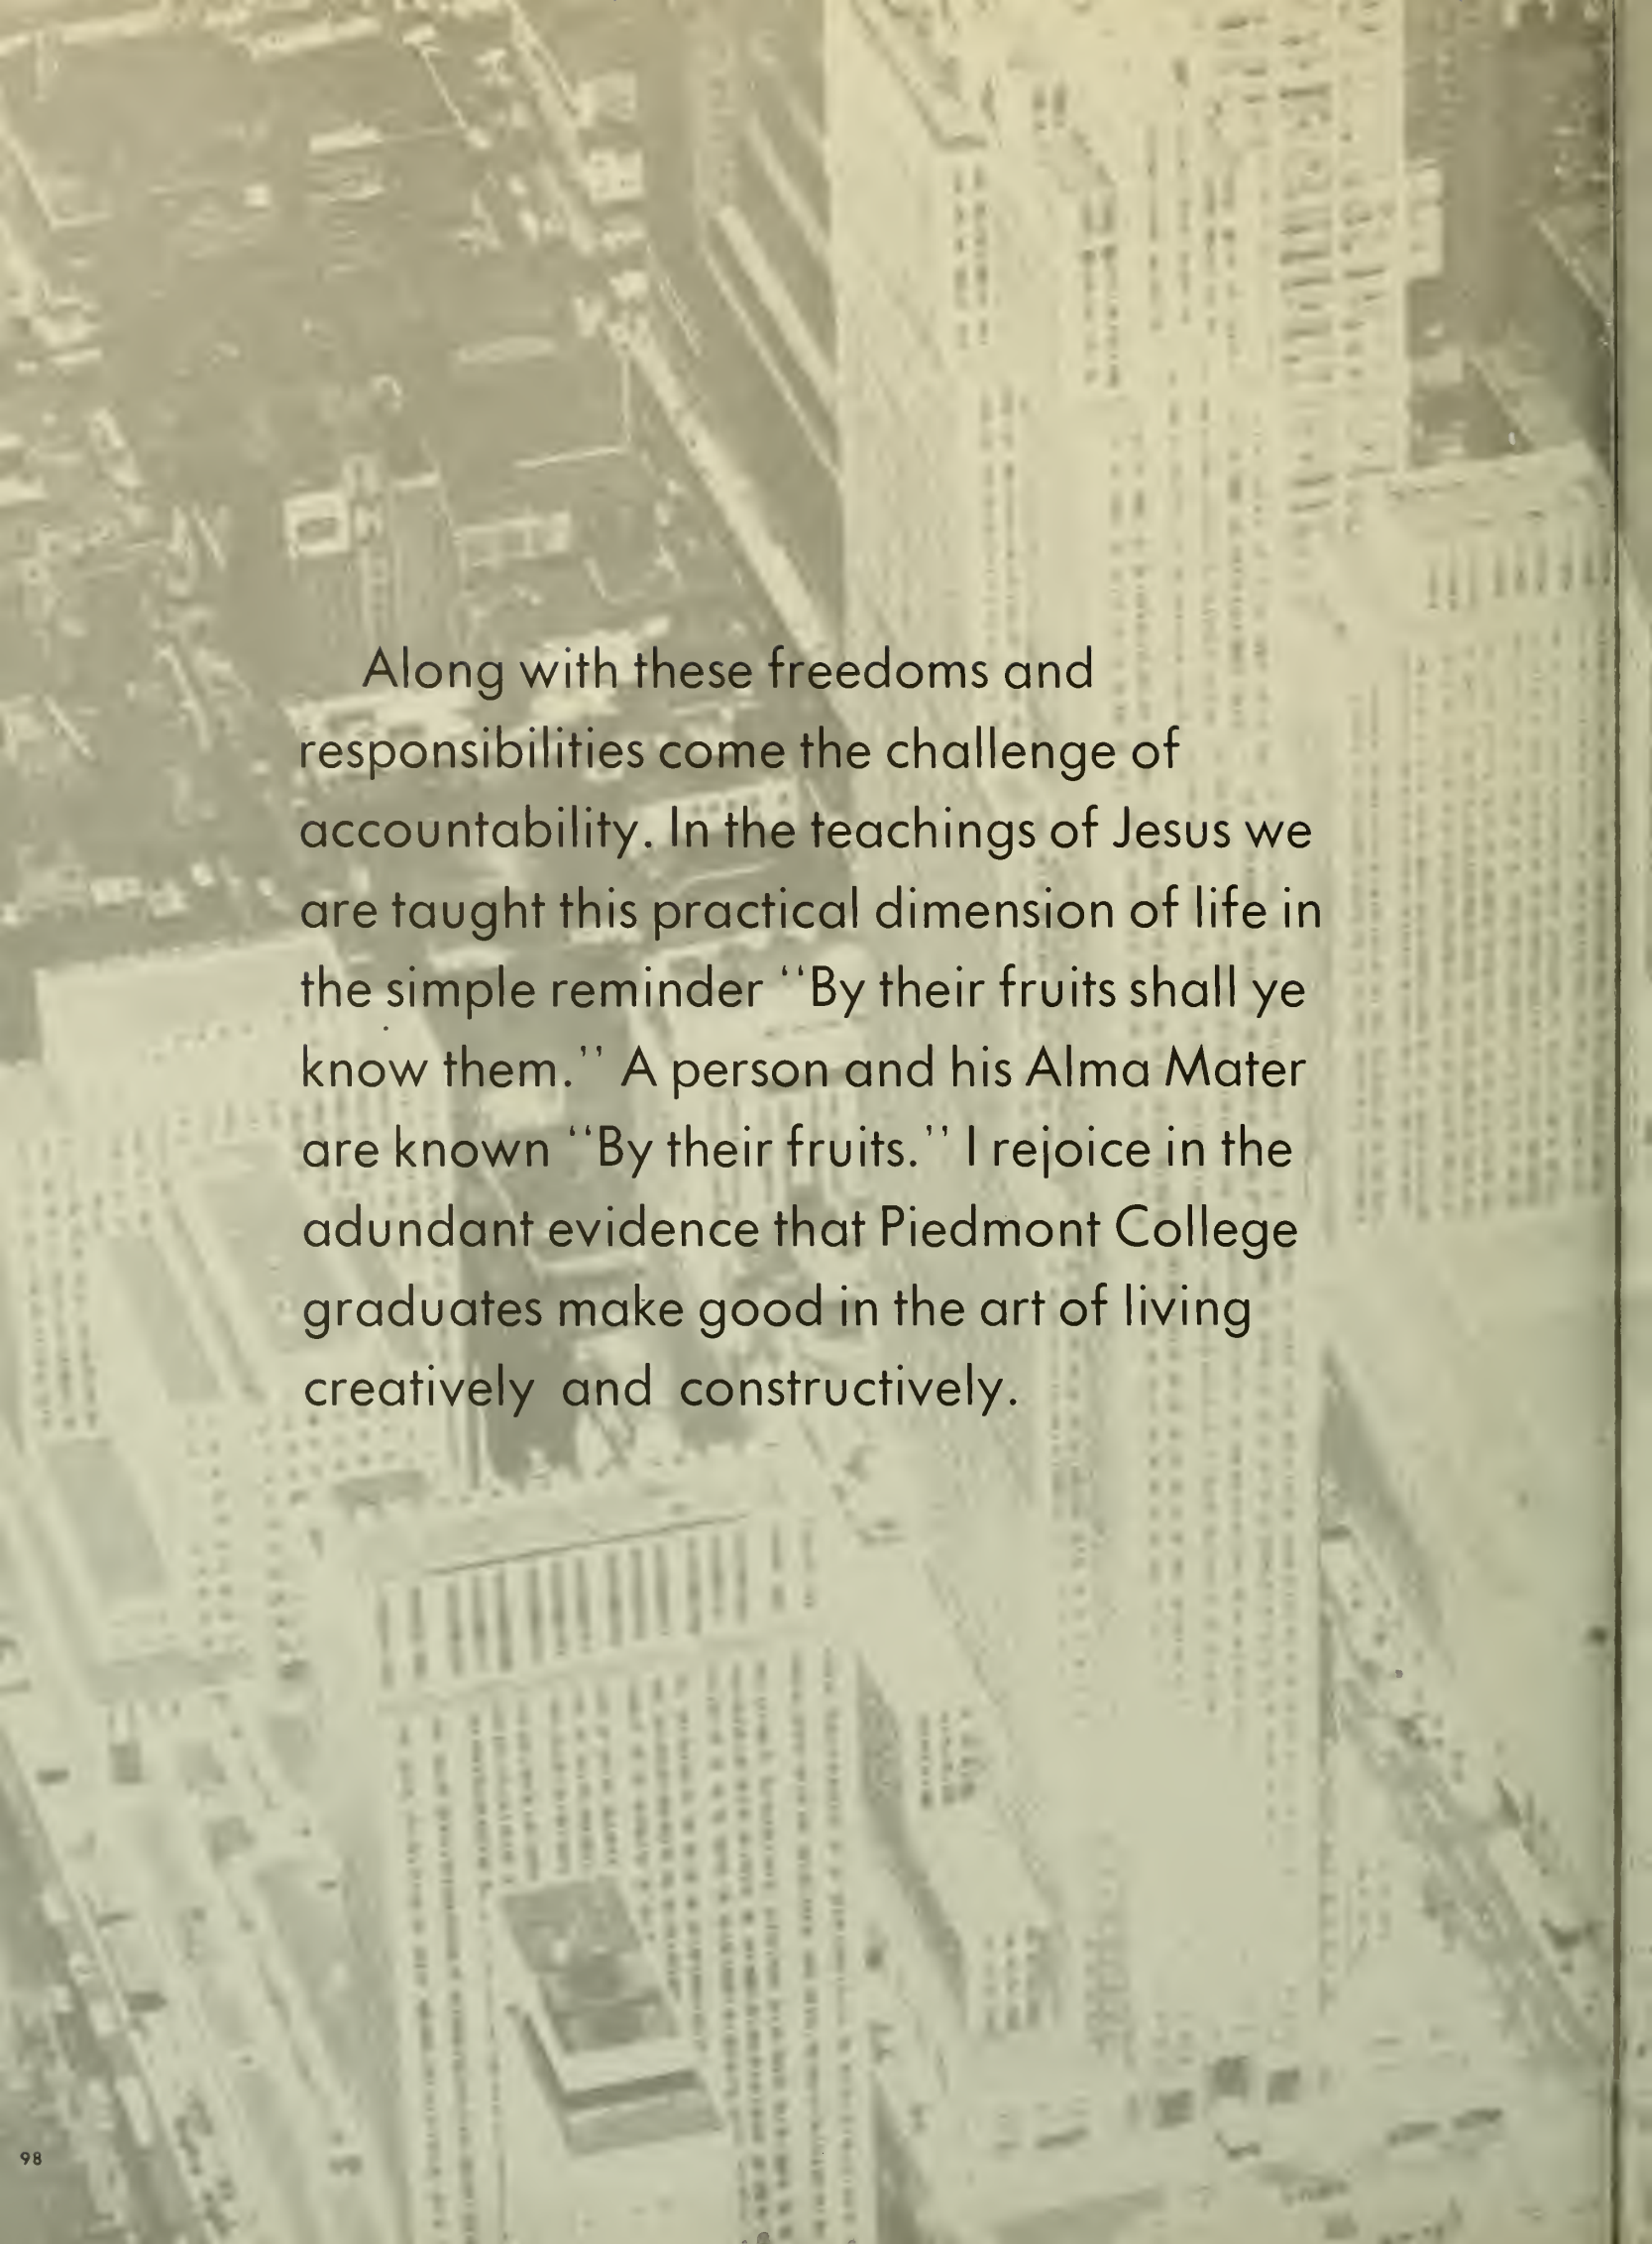

Once again the state of Georgia confirmed the historic principle that an independent college, like an individual person, enjoys the freedom to accept congenial persons and the privilege of excluding other visitors who do not measure up to the school's standards.

As young people, we now are aware of the distinction of education our country is giving through the federal notion of a minimum church, social classes, vis-schools, and civic group reassurance of the sensitivity and moral drive of the young people who benefit from fellowship with our country, each other, and the Earth. One thing is the quality of education in our country has to be the explanation of many of which I am ashamed. In these days of testing and re-examination I feel confident that the foundation principles of solidity, clarity, and fellowship shall be found abundantly accountable in measurements of union, ones, living, and ones, peace, hope, and eternal values.

An aerial, sepia-toned photograph of a city street grid. A large, multi-story building with a flat roof and many windows is the central focus. The surrounding streets are filled with smaller buildings and cars, creating a dense urban pattern.

Along with these freedoms and responsibilities come the challenge of accountability. In the teachings of Jesus we are taught this practical dimension of life in the simple reminder “By their fruits shall ye know them.” A person and his Alma Mater are known “By their fruits.” I rejoice in the abundant evidence that Piedmont College graduates make good in the art of living creatively and constructively.

An aerial, sepia-toned photograph of a dense urban skyline. Several tall, rectangular skyscrapers with many windows are visible, rising above a lower-density area of buildings and streets. The perspective is from a high angle, looking down on the city.

Our graduates continue to be most welcome in the graduate schools of the great universities in our nation. Our business administration majors are successful in establishing their own companies, and they are sought out for employment by the largest corporations. Our graduates who have been trained as elementary or high school teachers never lack for opportunities to use their talents. Our college faculty members have a right to feel proud of "their young people."

The realities of my life are refracted and channeled into a thousand fantasies. Cold stone obituary! History is frozen here. Selfhood, neurosis, domination, relevance: How many of us were ever as real as those dark stones? Like characters etched upon the pages of a fairy tale we act out our silly parts secure in a make-believe setting. Throughout our tiny windows we watch the world devour itself, soon we will leave this shelter and no longer will reality be distorted. But until then the future is colored with glass of green, pink, and yellow as we grope for a tinted truth through stained glass windows.
